Discover the Top 5 Reasons to Bring High School Interns to Your Company

High school students are enthusiastic about exploring opportunities in the financial services industry and can serve as valuable assets for companies looking to gain a competitive edge through accelerated talent recruitment efforts. The newly reimagined RTSWS Alumnae and Career Center can help your firm harness this advantage.

1. High School Students Exhibit Impressive Learning Abilities

High school students exhibit impressive learning abilities, particularly in technology-related areas, demonstrating a knack for swiftly grasping new concepts.

2. Boost Company Energy, Foster Knowledge Sharing & Cognitive Diversity

Having a high school intern brings a sense of enthusiasm to your employees. Interns can infuse the company with vibrancy and provide valuable learning to local students. There's much to gain from the insights of the next generation, too.

3. Enhance Workforce Development for Your Employees & the Student

Enhance workforce development through high school internships, enabling existing employees to step into mentorship and management roles.

4. Eager to Learn from Your Employees

There is a strong desire for high school internships. In fact, high school internship listings on the RTSWS Alumnae and Career Center consistently rank as the most viewed opportunities on our site.

5. Advancing Gender and Racial Equality

Hosting a high school intern not only gives you a head start in your college candidate search but also contributes to closing gender and racial gaps in the financial services sector. This investment in the future of the industry encourages more diverse candidates to pursue financial careers.
